Jimmy Henning is the Associate Dean for Extension and Director of the University of Kentucky, Cooperative Extension Service, accepting this responsibility in May, 2007. He is a native of Guymon, Oklahoma, and was reared in several towns and communities in Georgia. He is the second generation in his family to make a career with the Cooperative Extension Service.

Dr. Henning is a graduate of the University of Georgia and the University of Kentucky, College of Agriculture, receiving his Ph.D. from UK in Agronomy/Ruminant Nutrition in 1986. He began his career at the University of Missouri as a Forage Extension Specialist and has worked at the University of Kentucky since 1990. From 2003 to 2007, he served as the Assistant Director and Program Leader for Agriculture and Natural Resources, with special emphasis on agent training and development, as well as strengthening the state advisory council system for agriculture.

Jimmy is married to the former Faye Fleming of Tifton, Georgia, and they have one daughter, Anna.
